SUBJECT: Data Heading M

We have encountered a problem with the addition of the data heading M (secondary linear momentum) because there already exists a data unit M. This causes complications for our checking code and with our sequencing code since they can't always be sure if the second line is a title or unit. With only one such case it may not be so annoying, but perhaps we should make a general rule not to allow the same codes to be used for both titles and units to avoid adding more duplications in the future.

I would suggest that we change the data heading code M to M-SEC or M'. I don't think there have been many entries coded using this heading.
