

New NRDC Webpage (Please send your comments!)

Naohiko Otsuka

The image shows a screenshot of the International Network of Nuclear Reaction Data Centres (NRDC) website. The page title is "International Network of Nuclear Reaction Data Centres (NRDC)". The main navigation bar includes links for "Databases", "EXFOR", "ENDF", "CINDA", "IBANDL", "Medical", "PGAA", "NGAtlas", "RIPL", "FENDL", and "IRDF-2002".

Callouts highlight the following features:

- Links to databases and user's feedback [1]: Points to the "Databases" menu and the "Feedback on EXFOR" and "Feedback on CINDA" links.
- Links to manuals and other documents: Points to the "Documents" menu, which lists items like "Network Document", "EXFOR Basics", "EXFOR Formats", "LEXFOR", "NRDC Protocol", "EXFOR/CINDA Dictionary", "CINDA2001 Manual", "ENDF-6 Formats", and "More Documents".
- Links to past NRDC meetings (working papers, progress reports presentations): Points to the "NRDC Meetings" menu, listing years from 1999 to 2008.
- Links to NRDC data centres: Points to the "NRDC Centres" menu, listing various national data centres like NNDC (USA), NEADB (France), NDS (Austria), etc.
- Links to 4C and CP memo: Points to the "Memos" menu, listing various memoranda like "Memo 4C/1 (NNDC)", "Memo 4C/3 (NDS)", etc.

The main content area includes a "What is NRDC?" section, "Objectives and Tasks", and a table of "Core Centres".

| Centre | Joined |
|--|--------|
| USA International Nuclear Data Center Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, NY | 1966 |
| France OECD NEA Data Bank Issy-les-Moulineaux | 1966 |
| Austria IAEA Nuclear Data Section Vienna | 1966 |
| Russia Russian Nuclear Data Center Institute of Physics and Power Engineering, Obninsk | 1966 |

Some common tools developed for the NDS web site [2] are used.

Reference

[1] N. Otsuka, "What do we learn from the list of EXFOR outliers?", WP2008-3

[2] V. Zerkin, "New IAEA-NDS front page", WP2008-29.